Dental Season

It's that time of year! Dental disease affects 78% of pets over the age of three. It is the most common medical condition seen by veterinarians.

Why is Dental Disease a Concern?

Untreated dental disease or gingivitis is not just smelly & unpleasant to look at, it is also very painful. Owner's are often surprised by the change in appetite and behavior of their pet after a dental cleaning, even extractions! Pets will not show signs of pain, unless it is extreme. Instinctively they hide pain, in the wild they would be left behind or eaten by their pack!! Once we have removed the source of their discomfort, they are free to be themselves again.

The formation of plaque on the teeth leads to tartar buildup & gingivitis. If left untreated the bacteria in the mouth can be released into the bloodstream. Once in the bloodstream it can cause damage to the heart, lung, kidneys & liver.

Studies are also showing that chronic dental disease affects the overall systemic health of cats & dogs.

Once the teeth are restored to a 'tartar free state', it is integral they are maintained. We recommend brushing with pet toothpaste and food that mechanically cleans the teeth at each meal. Food that is small & chewed on the molars is ineffective; it must be large kibble that binds to the teeth, causing abrasion to remove tartar. We recommend Hills Science Diet T/d daily.

We are pleased to offer you our annual dental special. We understand dental care is a costly aspect of pet ownership, we are here to help.

Thank you for allowing us to care for your pet, please call our healthcare team to book an appointment.
